Test Of Faith

Lesson for August 18, 1963

One of the strangest stories anywhere is the story of Abraham preparing to kill his only son Isaac and offer the dead body as a burnt offering to God. The deeper question is one which we shall not pursue here: Can we believe that the God whom Christ revealed to us would for any reason command murder of this sort? Or if He did not really mean it, what kind of God would perpetrate such a cruel joke? Many Christians, when they stop to think about this, find themselves in a terrible dilemma; and so they take refuge in calling the story a kind of parable rather than literal fact.

A Believing Man's Conviction

Let us come down to a more manageable, even if still difficult problem. Let us think about the state of Abraham's mind. This good man had a conviction that the same God who had promised him a son was now commanding him to sacrifice that son just as though those days a bull or a cow would have been sacrificed, by knife and fire, a burnt offering in honor of God. The difficulty is now not theological but psychological. How could a good man believe such a thing? If a good man today were caught making an attack with a deadly weapon on his own son, and if he told the police to leave him alone, because "God ordered me to do this," the police would turn him over to a psychiatrist. For today any man who would explain a killing he was about to commit, on the ground that this was God's will, would be regarded as obviously insane.

The answer to that is fairly easily if we imagine ourselves back in Abraham's time and place. Child - sacrifice human sacrifice, was common, as the Bible and archaeology testify. Indeed, Abraham's neighbors might easily have jeered at him for having a cheap religion because he had 'not sacrificed his son. Anyhow, Abraham lived at a time when such an idea as God's commanding him to sacrifice Isaac could not be brushed off (as it would by any sane man today) as a crazy notion. He really believed that was what his God wanted.

A Believer's Conscience

Abraham lost no time doing what he firmly believed to be God's command. Now a great many people have consciences they do not use. "You ought" or "You ought not" are only little buzzing state in the mind, fairer and fainter as time goes on and the person pays less and less attention to what his conscience is trying to say. The good man listens to his conscience; his convictions appear in his actions. He is not fool of saying "I know I ought to, but . . ." If he knows or believes he ought to, he acts accordingly. We can call this conscientiousness, but we can call it also obedience. So far as the voice of conscience is the voice of God, following the conscience of obeying the voice of God. It is true, as history shows us, that a man may think an action is good when future centuries will mark down as evil.

A Believer's Crown

This strange story ends with God saying, "I will bless you . . . because you have obeyed my voice." The story brings out the point that sacrificing his only son was the last thing Abraham wanted to do. It is easy enough to do what we want or what suits our convenience; but when what I want and what I see to be right are not the same thing, then it's another story. Abraham has been honored around the world ever since, because he was one man for whom the number one question always was "Is this the will of God?"

Many a believing man have any reward except a kind of satisfaction in having done the right thing? Yes, he may have the reward Abraham had. Every man has even in this life some particular rewards for at least some of the good he has done, and these rewards are not all the same. Abraham was given the promise of a nation descended from him, and of being a blessing to all mankind. This could be given to every one of us. But isn't it likely that the best reward he could possibly have was that God approved of him? To be "approved unto God" is the brightest crown a servant and friend of God can wear.

THIS BEATNIK GENERATION

An American youth, with loosely disheveled hair, and in a soiled sport shirt, sitting on a stool, in a tavern keeping time with one foot, while a juke box thumps out crazy music, with a glass of beer before him, has been described as a 'beatnik'. One of those 'oddballs', who decides to dope, sex and despair. Yes, despair and a sense of futility has already become pathological. Their kind believe anything is better than their lot.

What is it that has produced a generation of people of this stripe? Oh, we preach juvenile delinquency, adult responsibility and let it go at that. I am sure these factors are high on the list of causes.

But, had you ever thought of what effect two world wars have brought? Destruction, taxation and compulsory military training has taken its toll of our youth? The 'Maynard' kind of a person is a symbol of a society inflicted with a fruitless philosophy which says 'so what'? I see no bright spots in my future. If this seems like a dark picture, well it is. All of the turbulences and storms which have come upon the horizon, and threaten to blow away our civilization, are real and have meaning. Like hurricane Arlene, bearing and festering down in the lower Atlantic now reduced to a tropical storm, but at this writing the forecasters are saying we must watch her, for she isn't out of danger yet.

This description of a modern world isn't anything new; for Luke in Acts 2:40, records that Simon Peter is that famous sermon at Pentacost, said, 'Save yourselves from this untoward generation'. This crooked, perverse, faithless, curved and scornful generation of people. The Madison Avenue approach to economics, the open belligerent attitude taken by so many towards Christ and his church reflect a spirit of futility. It is a mightly stream flowing through every segment of todays life.

Is there any hope? Is there any cure? Is there any source of life and power with which to meet and conqueor this approach to life? Yes, thank God there is. It is to be found in our relationship to the living Christ. The second chapter of Acts records a 'fellowship', a 'community of believers' in Christ, which can do something about changing this bealnik outlook.

No, I do not mean to imply that one can just trust Christ, and 'presto' everything will come out all right. We will have to live as a 'community of believers' in the midst of a world that is living in reverse — or upside down. With Christ and a common bond of faith in Him, we can find the answer to this 'futilistic' philosophy which runs through our world today.

Make a habit of worshiping Christ regularly in His Church. Take your family and friends with you to God's house and honestly seek Him. I believe there will rise a 'balm of Gilead', and a 'rose of sharon' in your life.

Last evening about 7:45 p.m., I discovered that I was without a razor for use in chopping of a full days' growth of hideous two - tone beard.

Finding the stores on 460 closed, I spotted your policeman, White, and told him of my predicament. After having directed me to the down - town stores which were also closed. Mr. White followed (a total stranger) to see if I was successful. He then asked me to follow to his home where he presented me a gillette which did a first class job. "No charge!" he insisted; "I have another."

I simply cannot help mentioning this incident, for it is one that I shall remember for a long long time. To me, it is SOUTHERN hospitality at its best, and courtesy extended a great deal over and beyond the call of duty.

Thanks again Sir. Your fine community of Appomattox should feel fortunate and proud to have such a public servant.
